of the island. The first move of the rebels was to rush the officers' quarters. Some of the officer were killed. Most of them were wounded and among those wounded were the commandant and his wife; others were arrested and confined in their quarters.

Then the mutineers turned on the fortress The infantry refused to join them, but did not make any move to prevent the arrest of infantry officers.

The mutineers took a train to Fort Constantine with the intention of arresting the officers there. The gunners told them that none of their officers were in the fort but the rebels found seven in their night quarters and put them under guard.

The rebels fired one shell on Cronstadt itself, but the officers there had been forewarned of the mutiny and Gen. Adlerberg. the commander of the fortress, sent a battalion of infantry and three quick firing guns against the fort which the mutineers had seized and it soon hoisted the white

Throughout the revolt the fortressartillery refused to join in the mutiny, and the men released their officers as soon as the sapper had gone. The mutineers carried as their banner a red flag on which was printed in white the words: "Land and Liberty. This is the motto borne now by the revolting peasantry throughout Russia.

FAILURE AT SVEABORG. Court-Martial to Try the Men Who Were Forced to Surrender. Special Cable Despatches to THE SUN. LONDON, Aug. 2.-An official telegram announces that all the mutineers at Sveaborg have surrendered and that a courtmartial is being formed to try the men implicated.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Aug. 2, 1 A. M .-The resistance of the mutineers who on Tuesday captured the fortress of Sveaborg, in this harbor, appeared at 9 o'clock last night to have been finally crushed. At that hour the battleships Slava and Tsarewitch had been pouring a terrific fire into the fortress for two hours from the short distance of fifty cable lengths. The rebellious forts, which had at first replied vigorously, gradually weakened. A number of boats filled with wounded left the islands about 9 o'clock.

Earlier in the fighting the mutineers had sustained a serious reverse in the destruc-tion of the powder magazine, which was on Uguaholmen Island, only 300 yards from the city of Helsingfors, this being the nearest of the seven rocky islands constituting Sveaborg. A shell from one of the warships blew up the magazine about 5 o'clock in the afternoon, following an all day cannonade. During a lull in the fighting the women and children living on the islands, which had a total civilian population of 1,500, were landed at Helsingfors.

The town remained wonderfully quiet throughout the fighting. Business contin-ued and crowds went to the harbor to watch the cannonading. There was some panic on Tuesday when the mutineers advanced from Skatudden along the peninsula. The inhabitants fled from the neighborhood, but loyal troops were drawn up to resist the approaching mutineers. The rebels retired and afterward allowed a detachment of Cossacks to take possession of their barracks.

A boat which left Sveaborg yesterday afternoon was bombarded and the occuants, who were members of the Finnish Red Guard, were wounded and made

The strike committee ordered a general strike to begin at 7 o'clock last evening, the revolutionaries in the forts having intimated that they would bombard Helsingfors if it were not ordered. '

WHY THE UPRISINGS FAILED. Mutiny at Sveaborg Was Started Prematurely and Upset All Plans. Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN LONDON, Aug. 2.-The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Times says that the mutiny at Sveaborg apparently started prematurely, owing to the arrest of marines who were preparing a general naval mutiny to begin simultaneously at Sveaborg, Cronstadt and Sevastorol. Having broken out prematurely, it failed to develop according to the plans.

The revolutionists hoped by a demonstration at Sveaborg to attract a large number of troops from St. Petersburg to Finland and thus create more favorable conditions for a mutiny at Cronstadt and possibly in the capital itself, but the Red Guard, in their misguided zeal, destroyed bridges and tore up sections of the railway, with the result that the movement of Russian troops was seriously delayed and the plans of the revolutionists were abortive.

Party dissensions seem to have further weakened the insurgents, for the various socialist and revolutionary cliques who participated in the demonstration proved incapable of forgetting their pet quarrels at the most critical moment.

The correspondent, describing the Cronstadt mutiny as a complete failure, says the garrison as a whole has not forgotten the bitter lessons of the October mutiny and is not in favor of another at the present moment. The agitators apparently did not realize the situation. They persuaded tioi: more devoted adherents to rise on the chance that the garrison would follow.

Altogether, the revolutionists displayed an astonishing lack of strategical and tactical capacity. Their abortive attempts will probably only drive the Government toward further reaction. Premier Stoly pin's scheme for moderate reforms will probably be abandoned. The members of e Social Democratic committee for arita tion in the army and several other Socialist agitators have been arrested

SIX MORE MURPHY LEADERS.

NEW DISTRICTS LEFT IN HANDS OF HAHN, WALSH AND DIETZ.

No Dissent in Executive Committee to Manning of the Primary Polls With Murphy Men-Tim Sullivan Interviews Murphy, and Ryder Is Withdrawn.

The Tammany Hall executive committee selected last night the members to represent in that body the six new districts which have been formed under the reapportionment of the Assembly district members. All six of the new representatives were friends of Charles F. Murphy and they were appointed as members of the com mittee without a voice in opposition. The men elected were Charles Hahn of the new Nineteenth district, James J. Walsh of the Twenty-first, John J. Dietz of the Twenty-W. E. Morris of the Thirty-third, A. H. Murphy of the Thirty-fifth and W. W Fraser of the north side of the Thirtieth. The first three named men are those who were selected leaders of the new districts, while the others were recommended to the executive committee by the general committees of some of the old districts which have been swallowed up in the new territo-

At last night's meeting, while it was realized that all the six men belonged to the Murphy ranks, no effort was made by those members of the committee who are against the continuance of Murphy's leadership to oppose their election. This step was in conformity with the policy which had been decided on by the opponents of Mr. Murphy that if any fight is to be made against him the struggle shall be made at the primaries. Having named the executive members from the new districts he has the advantage of controlling the election machinery there. A little incident happened at Tammany Hall yesterday which went to show that Mr. Murphy is not altogether sure of his hold on the organization. After the death of Patrick H. Keahon, the leader of the Seventh district, his nephew, Charles W. Culkin, who had been acting leader during Mr. Keahon's illness, was chosen by the local organization to succeed his uncle and put up for leadership of the new Fifth district, into which the greater part of the old Seventh has been thrown. Culkin has the Sullivans behind him and the district is in that part of the downtown territory which is controlled by the Sullivan clan. A couple of weeks ago Mr. Murphy directed . J. Ryder, the leader of the old Third district, which has been merged in the new Fifth, to go in and make a fight against Fifth, to go in and make a right against Culkin. Yesterday Big Tim Sullivan went to Tammany Hall and had a talk with Murphy. What happened between them neither would make known, but last night Mr. Murphy stated that Pat Ryder had retired from the contest in the Fifth district and that Culkin would not be opposed. Mr. Murphy announced that as Ryder had been elected on Wednesday a member of the Democratic State committee he was contented.

Although there was no opposition in the meeting of the executive committee to the naming of Mr. Murphy's candidates, when the general committee met later and the action of the executive committee was the action of the executive committee was brought up for approval ex-Coroner James Berry of the Thirty-fifth district rose to object to the selection of A. H. Murphy.

"I wish to protest against the adoption of this report," he said. "There has been no meeting of the general committee of the district since the reapportionment plan was adopted, and I insist that the affairs of the district shall be left to the voters of was adopted, and I insist that the affairs of the district shall be left to the voters of the district, and I wish to say now that—

He was shut off at that point by Julius Harburger, who presided. Mr. Harburger ruled that for the moment he was out of order, as the regular order of business had not been followed. A resolution regretting the death of Patrick H. Keahon was then proposed and adopted, and before Mr. Berry had a chance to get on his feet again Mr. Harburger pretended to have heard a motion for adjournment and declared it carried.

The meeting issued the call for the primary elections on September 18, and also decided upon these convention dates: County convention, October 10; Congress conventions, October 2; Senste conventions, October 4; Assembly district conventions, October 6, district conventions to elect delegates to the State convention, September 29.

Among those present at the meeting yesterday were Norman E. Mack of Buffalo, O. H. P. Belmont, George Fred Williams of Massachusetts, ex-Senator James Smith of New Jersey, Nathan Straus, Henry Campau of Michigan, Congressman Sulzer, Richard Croker, Jr., and Francis Burton Harrison.

The latter as chairman of the committee on finance reported that the railroads had agreed to make a special excursion rate. The steamship lines running up the coast have agreed to cut rates in half and the committee expect a crowd that will equal that of the Columbian centennial.

"Timidity rose up and said there must be avoidance of a double ticket. The certain way to avoid that misfortune was to give the proceeds of the chase to Cummins for himself and to share as might seem to him expedient with the captains of the camp."

It was learned to-day that the six standpaters who controlled the resolutions committee of the State convention said not a word in protest against the tariff plank. This is being commented on as remarkable in that it declares for revision to meet changing conditions and "inevitable inequalities" and also to oppose domestic monopoly, the very doctrine by which they have through the campaign declared Cummins wanted to disrupt the Republican party and make it Democratic.

"The fact is," said one of the Cummins newspapers to-day, "that this shows that the impression that this has been a tariff fight is erroneous. Mr. Perkins circulated that claim when in search of an issue. And when Oyster Bay declared against using revision in the Congressional campain crowd of Plumbers' Union No. 480 men on Friday night last had a habit of frequenting Raines law hotel on the corner of Metropolitan and Kent avenues. There was an explosion in the barroom of this hotel on Tuesday night, a few hours before Owens blew off his hand with a second bomb in front of Mary Eise's door at 279 Wythe avenue. Late Tuesday night residents in the neighborhood of the hotel, heard the explosion there. Later came the two explosions in the tenement three blocks away. blood the police who went to 279 Wythe avenue to investigate the explosions there were led to the hotel and up two flights of stairs to a room, where they found Owens mutilated and bleeding. Police Capt. Pinkerton heard later of the explosion at the hotel, and early on Wednesday morning returned to ask about it. He found that glaziers had already been at work setting in three panes of glass and that a pile of shattered glass had been gathered up and dumped into the ash barrel behind the house. The barkeeper said that "the boys" had been fooling with a giant cracker the night before and that it had gone off, breaking the glass in front of the barroom. The police captain identified "the boys" as six members of Plumbers' Union No. 2 who either live in the hotel or gather there of nights. Owens was in the barroom at the time of the explosion. At the tenement where Owens lived with his wife and child, according to Mrs. Johanna Tobin, the landlady, who lives on the floor beneath that occupied by the Owens family, minor explosions in Owens's rooms have been not infrequent in the past two or three months. Any attempt at investigation on her part has always been met, she says, by curses and admonitions two or three months. Any attempt at investigation on her part has always been met, she says, by curses and admonitions to mind her own business.

Mrs. Tobin says that several men have often accompanied Owens to his room late at night and that on those occasions she has heard noises like the sawing of boards and the filing of iron. She also says that the last meeting of the friends of Owens took place on Thursday evening a week ago, the night before the bomb was dropped from the Third avenue elevated. About the explosion of Wednesday morning she says:

"A few minutes after midnight I was awakened by a loud report outside of my window, which opens on the fire escape next to Mrs. Eise's window. Then in a minute I heard Owens come downstairs in his stockinged feet. He knocked first at my door, but I was soared and didn't answer. Then he went down the hall and beat on Mrs. Eise's door. I heard him oursing and abusing her and she replying in like manner. Then I heard him say, 'When I get inside I'll blow you to hellt' Just then the second explosion came, and I heard him run downstairs and out into the street."

Owens still lies in the Eastern District Hospital too weak to be submitted to an examination. Mrs. Else, who also was wounded by the bomb, was kept in the hospital yesterday, but will probably be released to-day. The police have her story and intimate that it has an important bearing on the stage. earing on the case. A plumbers' supply merchant of Williams burg, who has not reported his information to the police, said yesterday that on last Friday night, the night of the bomb throwing on Third avenue, a party of four men,
